

Purpose

This conference was developed to provide a general overview of some specific issues in global health service to the poor populations in developing or developed countries worldwide. The information presented is a major part of the ongoing educational initiatives by PAGH to help enhance the knowledge and skills of those who serve.

Objectives

Develop a service plan addressing water, sanitation, food security, education, environmental hazards and health to the poor worldwide.

Describe specific preventative measures that can be implemented to avoid disease.

Discuss most prevalent diseases in developing countries and evidence based treatment with limited resources.

Identify and assess the political, economic, and social factors which contribute to increased morbidity and mortality for a given population.

Identify specific governmental, business, and nonprofit organizations that may incorporate your after action plan to provide a continuity of care to the population served.
